6.3.3 Report of teaching & non-teaching staff participating in faculty development programs, management development programs, professional development programs/ administrative training programs during the last five years.

The report given below presents highlights for the past five-years, regarding various programs and activities undertaken by our institution, with a special focus on the Faculty Development Programs (FDPs), Conferences, Workshops, Seminars, and Professional Development Programs/ Administrative training programs in which our dedicated Teaching and Non-Teaching Staff actively participated.

1. Faculty Development Programs:

A core component of our commitment to academic excellence is the continuous development of our teaching staff. During these years, many Faculty Development Programs were conducted, aimed at enhancing the pedagogical and research skills of our educators. The faculty of the institution, whether teaching or non-teaching has been provided with ample opportunities to hone their skills in academics as well as administration.

2. Conferences/Seminars/Webinars:

The significance of research in contributing to national or international growth is quite obvious, and the institution, understands the value of such activities. In the same light, we not only have always encouraged the faculty to participate in such programs being organized in other institutions, but we also regularly organize such activities to provide opportunities to other researchers across the region. Several national/international level seminars/ conferences/symposia/webinars have been successfully conducted by the college.

3. Workshops:

The deliberations in symposia etc. sometimes do not provide hands-on-experience to the workers. This can be achieved only through Workshops. The faculty of the college organized and participated in various workshops, covering wide domains.

4. Professional Development Programs /Administrative training programs:

Our commitment to staff development extends beyond teaching faculty, and we regularly include non-teaching staff in professional development programs. It is quite clear that the role of administrative/office staff is pivotal for any institution, therefore, a number of Professional Development Programs were organized to enhance the skills and expertise of our non-teaching staff.

In addition to the programs and activities mentioned above, our faculty and staff have consistently contributed to research publications, collaborative projects, and community engagement initiatives, further enriching our institution's reputation.
